

Call for Honorarium Applications – Routledge Water Diplomacy Handbook

Editors: Shafiqul Islam (Tufts University), Kevin Smith (Tufts University), Martina Klimes (SIWI/ICWC), Aaron Salzberg (University of North Carolina)

What: Editors in collaboration with the International Centre for Water Cooperation, hosted by SIWI, present a call for applications for honorariums for the authors of the Routledge Water Diplomacy Handbook. The Handbook will be a practical companion for anyone working to achieve a negotiated resolution to a water conflict or to strengthen emerging cooperation over a shared water resource. It will utilize accessible language and does not presuppose any specific background knowledge. The handbook will serve as a primer for those who want to start negotiating over shared waters and a source of practical insights for those who are already engaged in a negotiation process, whether they serve as principal negotiators, dialogue facilitators, external observers, or as a member of a preparation team. Researchers of water negotiation processes will find value in the handbook's case studies and their contextualization within the Water Diplomacy Framework. It will help geopolitics experts better understand political dynamics in water-scarce regions across the globe, and economic analysts better understand the role of water and societal resilience when assessing market stability.

Deadline: June 28, 2022

Who is eligible? Authors who are contributing with a chapter to the Routledge Water Diplomacy Handbook. Authors who are eligible to apply for the honorarium must fulfil one of the conditions below:

- Authors with primary affiliations based in countries defined by the World Bank as 'Low-Income Economies' or 'Lower-Middle-Income Economies'.
- Students without a full-time employment relevant to the field.
- Authors from countries defined by the World Bank as 'Low-Income Economies' or 'Lower-Middle-Income Economies' without a full-time employment.

Requirements: Submit the following:

- Chapter abstract and indication of progress
- A brief motivation letter – 300 words

Successful candidates will be awarded 10 000 SEK in a one-time payment or a full registration to the 2022 or 2023 World Water Week.
